DEMOS' PLATFORM APPROVED

-London Meet- Soviet, U. S. In Accord Course Of Suez Talk Agreed

LONDON (AP) — The United States and Russia were reported to have agreed Wednesday night that armed force must be ruled out in the Suez Canal dispute.

Secretary of State Dulles conferred for the first time with Soviet Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov.

Dulles emerged from their 90-minute talk satisfied that the Soviet Union was ready to join in an effort to take the canal dispute out of world politics.

Willoughby
Dulles formed the impression that the Russian was both open-minded and willing to do business over the final form of a Suez settlement at the 22-nation conference opening tomorrow.

Their talk took them no nearer firm agreement on what the settlement will be. But it did clear the air and informants said it clarified the viewpoints of each.

They were still split over President Nasser's insistence that Egypt must operate the canal and limit any international role to advice.

Dulles flew in early Wednesday and saw British and French leaders before meeting the Russian in the talk at the U.S. Embassy. Shepilov asked for the meeting with Dulles.

Proposals
Informants reported the Western Powers reached substantial agreement on the proposals they intended to present.

Egypt's President Nasser created the issue by nationalizing the Suez Canal Co. July 26. A week later Britain, France and the United States called a conference of 24 nations. Greece and Egypt declined to attend.

Dulles and Shepilov were reported to have agreed that the conference can take no positive, final decision. Dulles was said to have offered the new that the West cannot present any ultimatum to Egypt but only a set of recommendations. Egypt might be willing to accept.

But the major difference between them—Egypt's role as sole operator of the canal—seemed certain to be a sticking point.

Not Control
Pakistan's Foreign Minister Hamidul Haq Chowdhury said that in a Cairo stopover talk, Nasser told him he would accept international advice on running the canal but not international control.

Indian diplomats have been saying much the same thing since last week.

Shepilov was said to be ready to accept at face value Nasser's promise to run the canal fairly, efficiently and freely, providing for U.N. intervention in case of a breach.

The U.S.-British-French objection to this is that other vitally interested nations should share in the actual management.

First Trouble
CAIRO (INS)—Egypt's new nationalized canal authority ran into its first serious difficulty in operating the Suez Canal traffic Wednesday because of a shortage of pilots. Officials insisted that traffic was almost normal, however, as the Arab world planned a strike of 10,000 to 15,000 persons Thursday to protest the opening of the London international conference on Suez.

Hurricane Betsy
On Way To Death
MIAMI (INS)—With hurricane Betsy well on her way to a lonely death at sea, weather experts concentrated Wednesday night on a new disturbance in the south Atlantic hurricane belt.

Winds were clocked at 40 miles per hour in a low pressure area discovered earlier Wednesday evening in the same area that produced Betsy.

Meanwhile, Betsy, in spite of her 120-MPH wind strength, appeared destined to die without touching the Eastern seaboard.

Late Wednesday night the second big storm of the season was 280 miles from Daytona Beach, Fla., toward the open sea.

LINCOLN'S 101 TOPS STATE

Lincoln's 101 Wednesday topped high temperatures across Nebraska.

Grand Island reported a 100-degree reading, and elsewhere across the state the mercury soared into the 90s.

Showers Wednesday night brought .06 inch precipitation at Omaha and .04 inch at Valentine.

Light rain fell in Lincoln early Thursday morning.

Thundershowers were reported Wednesday night near McCook and Sidney.

Storms and showers were reported in the vicinity of Grand Island, North Platte, Imperial, Scottsbluff, Alliance, Kearney and Amesbury, the Weather Bureau said.

Widely scattered thundershowers hit mostly in the eastern portion of Nebraska were forecast for Thursday and Thursday night.

High readings Thursday were to reach into the lower 90s in the northeast and to near 100 in the southwest, the Weather Bureau said.

Precipitation totals for Tuesday night and Wednesday showed a trace of rain at Valentine and Sidney.

Ex-Korea Envoy
To Aid Breaking
Open Iron Curtain

WASHINGTON (INS) — A veteran diplomat was given a top-ranking State Department job Wednesday to help break down the Iron Curtain by developing more person-to-person exchanges between the East and West.

William S. B. Lacy, former ambassador to Korea, was named as a special assistant to Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to carry out the assignment.

Lacy will devote himself to the problem of the exchange of persons, literature and culture information between the U.S. and the Communist bloc.

The appointment was made in line with a National Security Council recommendation which President Eisenhower approved June 29.

Lacy will be working along lines suggested by the Big Three foreign ministers last October during the Geneva foreign ministers conference. Tripartite proposals submitted then made 17 suggestions to eliminate barriers between the East and West.

Although the Soviet Union at that time brushed aside these Allied proposals, there has been an increase of East-West exchanges since then.

Nebraskans' Attention On Vice President

CHICAGO (AP) — Confident that their man now is a shoo-in for the Democratic Presidential nomination, Nebraska supporters of Adlai Stevenson started turning their attention tonight to second place on the ticket.

The Nebraska delegation in the party's national convention has taken no official poll on the vice presidential nomination, and W. E. Townsend of Lincoln, Democratic state chairman, said the filling of second place on the ticket is largely up to the Presidential nominee.

But there were predictions that Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who withdrew from the main race prior to the convention, would get support in the Nebraska delegation for the running mate spot. Kefauver, winner of the last two Nebraska Presidential primaries, has urged his backers to support Stevenson for the Presidential nomination.

'Can't Stop Adlai'
As for the top nomination, Townsend said:

"I don't see how anybody can stop Stevenson now."

The Nebraska delegation has known how it stood since last Sunday — at least 11 of its 12 votes for Stevenson on the first ballot.

Townsend, in predicting that Stevenson won't be stopped, noted that Stevenson had picked up a big batch of strength Wednesday in the New Jersey and Michigan delegations.

Asked his reaction to former President Harry Truman's strenuous efforts in behalf of Stevenson's main rival, Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, Townsend said:

"He is so far out on the limb now that I wonder how Truman is going to get back when Stevenson is nominated."

No Serious Differences
Townsend predicted there wouldn't be any serious differences within the delegation on platform planks on agriculture and civil rights.

He said the Nebraska group favors high support prices for basic farm commodities.

The proposed agricultural plank urges repeal of current flexible price supports and restoration of supports on basic commodities at 90 per cent of parity.

Many of the Nebraska delegates took advantage of Wednesday afternoon's break in convention activities to attend the Cincinnati-Chicago baseball game.

Cormack of Massachusetts, and then in a new role, President Truman, adopting the attitude of peacekeeper pleaded for the adoption of the majority report.

The squabble ended as quickly as it started. Permanent Chairman Rayburn ruled that the platform had been adopted including the majority report on civil rights.

There is one deeply etched impression to be had from the proceedings thus far. These Democrats attending this national convention are obviously hungry.

They want to return to power in the White House at the bottom of Pennsylvania Avenue and to remain in charge on Capitol Hill looking down.

Civil Rights Plank Opposition Is Killed Action Follows Appeal By Truman; Adlai Near First Ballot Win

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago (Thursday) (AP) — Democrats fought a fast, furious battle over civil rights early today and then whooped through their national convention a plank they hoped would bridge the gap between North and South.

It was a climatic moment at a convention already facing another — the likely first ballot nomination tonight of Adlai E. Stevenson over Gov. Averell Harriman of New York as the party presidential candidate.

What the Democrats adopted in the way of a civil rights plank was the one that came out of more than a week of maneuvering and word juggling in the platform committee.

It offered no outright endorsement of the Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in public schools, nothing in the way of a call for a federal fair employment practices commission (FEPC).

It did say that recent Supreme Court anti-segregation decisions had "brought consequences of vast importance to our nation" and "we reject all proposals for the use of force to interfere with the orderly determination of these matters by the courts."

Swallow
Southerners didn't even want anything that strong but were willing to gag and swallow it in the interests of party harmony.

A group of Northerners fought for endorsement of the Supreme Court decision and lost — on a voice vote by the entire convention.

The shouted decision came just after the party's old war horse of 1948, former President Harry S. Truman, dramatically took a microphone in his spectator's box to call upon the delegates to adopt the civil rights plank as it came from the drafters.

"So we can go out fighting the Republicans," he said, "with everything necessary to lick 'em."

Truman said he offered his advice as one who had a hand in putting together every party platform since 1936.

'The Best'
He paid tribute to the platform committee chairman, Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts as being every bit as liberal as he was and he said "I've done more to implement (civil) rights than any other President."

And, he said, this year's platform "is the best one this convention has ever had put before it."

Waiting for the civil rights battle to develop, a northern strategy board made its way to the convention platform and huddled there in view of the many delegates.

The group included Gov. G. Mennen Williams of Michigan, Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, Richard Richards of California, nominee for the Senate, Sen. Herbert Lehman of New York and Minnesota delegate E. Robert Short.

Stuck It Out
Short was picked to offer the civil rights plank amendments.

With the biggest tussle of the convention delayed into the early morning hours, delegates stuck it out here in the Chicago amphitheater, but spectators for the most part didn't.

Stalling for time was the order in the convention itself. The main speaker of the evening, Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, was moved up a notch-in front of presentation of the platform instead of behind it. Then the band started an impromptu concert of state songs that gave delegates a chance to whoop it up a bit and join in some group singing.

Could Be On First Ballot
In the presidential derby, Stevenson hung just short of the magic 68 1/2 votes needed to put him across on the first ballot.

Some 50 minutes after the stalling began, Rayburn called it off. But it took him another five minutes to restore order — of a sort. He introduced Rep. John McCormack of Massachusetts, chairman of the Platform Committee, to present the proposed declaration of party principles to the delegates.

Preamble Read
After promising that "I am going to fight just as hard as I can to maintain unity in the Democratic party," McCormack started reading the platform preamble.

The only kink-sized dispute was over the civil rights plank, a compromise affair that wasn't as objectionable to Southerners as to Northerners demanding two additions:

A pledge to "carry out" the Supreme Court decision outlawing racial segregation in public schools and a call for legislation along lines of setting up a permanent fair employment practices commission.

Some Midwesterners weren't exactly happy over the farm plank, which promises the Democrats will try to get full parity returns for farmers — by means of 90 per cent of parity price supporting loans supplemented by other measures.

Hammer At GOP
All the way through, the platform goes after the GOP and sets forth the issues and appeals on which the Democrats plan to rest their case before the voters this fall.

McCormack tapped Rep. Thomas J. Dodd of Connecticut to read the foreign-policy plank.

Some Depart
The enthusiasm of some of the spectators was waning. Seats reserved for the gallery birds were emptying steadily and the session appeared to be heading toward a marathon stretch.

The presidential balloting begins today, and practically every politician here figured Stevenson a sure winner over Averell Harriman.

Even former President Truman, who had proclaimed his intention to fight for Harriman "until the last dog dies," was reported to be quite aware that his man is beaten.

The all-out support of former President Truman wasn't enough to save Harriman.

Even as the fiery little man from Missouri was publicly knocking Stevenson again as "lacking the kind of fighting spirit that we need to win," two of his top confidants were saying: "It's all over now."

That was after Stevenson had smashed through the roadblock of favorite sons and gathered in most of the 44 votes from the Michigan delegation and all 36 for New Jersey.

Counting in Arkansas, The AP tabulation gives:

Stevenson, 67 1/2
Harriman, 23 1/2
Others, 25 1/2
Uncommitted, 20 1/2
Needed to nominate: 68 1/2.

It is impossible after years of convention coverage to ignore the genuine effort of Democrats gathered here to find a common ground of peace and understanding. That is the most impressive element that has developed in the convention thus far. There may be platform differences expressed, and battling when the nominations get underway may be spirited, but unlike the two previous Democratic conventions the delegates to this one are determined to give themselves and their party a chance for victory in November.

It should be remembered that this convention sees the seating of the largest number of delegates in the party's history. That was a dangerous experiment.

So many more delegates simply means so many more flaring tempers, tempers to get out of hand, tempers to give themselves over to anger, and frequently in the image of a convention tempers to say things those who say them wish they never had.

There is at least 72 hours left for temper to secure recognition from the presiding officer.

TRUMAN POINTS UP CHOICE

Former President Harry Truman, calling anew for the nomination of Gov. Averell Harriman of New York, points a finger at his news conference where he charged Adlai Stevenson "lacks the kind of fighting spirit" needed to preserve New Deal and Fair Deal principles. (Story on Page 3.) (AP Wirephoto.)

Truman Sparks Civil Rights Unity

Rayburn Action In Convention Choir
Cuts Floor Battle Short

CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, (Thursday) (AP). — The Democratic National Convention early today beat back by voice vote an attempt by a group of northerners to nail a stronger civil rights plank into the party's 1956 platform.

The action came after a personal appeal from President Truman to reject the northerners' proposal.

The convention then roared approval of the whole platform, including the controversial plank which recognized the Supreme Court desegregation decision but did not pledge, as the rebels' wanted it to, specific enforcement of the decision.

Truman said he had had a hand in every convention since 1936.

He said he had gone over this platform, too, and "it's the best one he had ever seen."

Truman said the majority plank was fully acceptable to him "and I've done more to implement (civil) rights than any other President of the United States."

Short Debate
The vote came at 12:25 a.m. and after all the talk, the way convention chairman Sam Rayburn ran it, it took only a couple of minutes to settle the decision.

The Georgia standard was waving, and there were cries and much pointing toward it, but Rayburn went right ahead and presented the final speaker on the program, Negro Rep. William L. Dawson of Chicago.

As the vote was taken, Truman left.

The short-lived northern revolt, which stalled the convention nearly an hour while backstage efforts were made to quell it, came mainly from New York, Michigan and a few other big population states.

The 14 insurgents on the 108-member platform committee tried and failed to have a roll call on their plank.

They couldn't get the necessary request from eight states.

Rayburn didn't help them try, either.

He called for a voice vote on the substitute plank and promptly decided the noes had it.

Ruling Protested
A cry of protest arose from many supporters of the substitute, and Rayburn took offense.

"I've taken the eyes and nose many a time and I think I know which is louder," Rayburn snapped.

After the vote was taken, Platform Committee Chairman McCormack said.

"I'm so happy at the sound action of the delegates. It means unity and victory in November."

Fight
McCormack led off the presentation of the platform. He said: "I am going to fight just as hard as I can to maintain unity in the Democratic party by fighting for its adoption at this convention. I'll have more to say about that."

At one point while the Platform Committee's report was being presented, Convention Chairman Sam Rayburn held a hurried and earnest conversation with Harry S. Truman in the former President's mezzanine box.

As Rayburn walked back toward the platform, Truman told a reporter:

"He wants me to talk about the platform, and I am going to accommodate him."

Prepared
"Are you going to support it?" Truman was asked.

"You wait and see," he replied. Rayburn had said earlier Truman was prepared to speak out for the Platform Committee's civil rights plank.

Not far away on the convention floor, David L. Lawrence, Pennsylvania national committeeman and Platform Committee member was asked what the prospects were on civil rights. He said:

"We're having a lot of trouble. I hope it doesn't break up the Democratic party."

No Sign Nixon Will Be Dumped, Hall Says

'Smooth' Convention Predicted

... For Republicans

By ALVIN SPIVAK
SAN FRANCISCO (INS)—GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall said Wednesday there is no sign that Harold Stassen's "dump Nixon" campaign has had any effect on delegates to next week's Republican convention.

Hall said in a television interview: "There isn't any sign whatsoever that what has happened to date has had any impression on the delegates."

He said the GOP "will have a smooth convention, and the result will be renomination on the greatest team that has ever been in Washington — Ike and Nixon."

Predicts Re-election
The party leader also predicted that Mr. Eisenhower and Nixon will be re-elected, regardless of who the Democratic candidate may be.

Hall was asked to comment on the Nixon-Stassen situation in view of statements of vice presidential availability by California's Gov. Goodwin Knight and Maryland's Gov. Theodore R. McKeldin. The chairman replied:

"There are 1,323 delegates and they are in control of the convention. But, at the present time, I have had maybe two letters from delegates who say they don't want Nixon."

Discord Signs

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Signs of discord within the host California delegation over endorsement of Vice President Nixon, a fellow Californian, flared up Wednesday while GOP committees started work on an Eisenhower-requested "brief, forthright" platform for next week's national convention.

Arriving on the scene, Sen. William F. Knowland, the Republican senate minority leader, in effect told Gov. Goodwin J. Knight—an "available" man for the vice presidency—either to get behind Nixon or give up aspirations to head California's delegation.

Knight in Sacramento retorted: "If the price of my being chairman is that I must yield to steamroller pressure in violation of the President's expressed desire for an open convention free to every Republican to speak his mind, then the price is too high."

Not An Active Candidate
He reiterated his stand he was not seeking the vice presidency and would support the man selected by Eisenhower and the convention.

"If these positions on my part can justify Sen. Knowland and Vice President Richard Nixon recommending the renomination made by their designative representatives at the time this delegation was formed," Knight snapped, "they, of course, have the power to select as chairman someone other than myself."

Maryland's Gov. Theodore McKeldin, on hand as chairman of the GOP rules subcommittee, also continues to say he isn't seeking

Taylor Inches Ahead In Idaho Demo Voting

BOISE, Idaho (AP)—Former Sen. Glen Taylor inched a handful of votes ahead in his battle to win Idaho's Democratic nomination for senator.

In the closest race in state history, Taylor moved slowly ahead of a newcomer to Idaho politics, 32-year-old Frank Church, a Boise lawyer.

Unofficial returns from all but nine of the state's 893 precincts put the former "singing cowboy senator" ahead by 36 votes in a total count of some 75,000. Two other candidates were left far behind.

Sen. Herman Welker, seeking a second term, won the Republican nomination easily in a field of five. Welker polled 31,596 votes to 20,952 for William S. Holden of Idaho Falls, his nearest opponent. Welker and Holden both are 49 and both are attorneys.

Renominated
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas Reps. Brooks Hays and W. F. Norrell were renominated in Arkansas Democratic preferential primary.

Hays, representing the 5th district, received 31,891 votes to 13,307 for his opponent, Bill Donham, a Little Rock attorney.

Voters in the 6th district gave Norrell 33,914 and 25,246 to his opponent, prosecuting Atty. Pat H. Mullis of Pine Bluff.

Only three boxes remained to be counted in the 5th District and two in the 6th.

The contests were the only congressional races in the primary. Democratic nomination is equivalent to election in Arkansas.

The San Francisco Chronicle quoted McKeldin as saying flatly that "Nixon is not popular, he's just not popular."

Truman Nursing Sore Hand After Gas Heater Blast

CHICAGO (INS)—Former President Truman was nursing a sore and tender left hand Wednesday—the result of a gas heater explosion in his home at Independence, Mo.

Truman winced as a woman well-wisher grabbed his hand in a hotel lobby.

He drew the hand back and rubbed it, explaining:

"I went down in the basement the other day to light the gas heater and it exploded on me, and blistered my hand. It's still pretty sore."

He had a small bandage around a part of his hand to protect the blistered flesh.

Cattle Prices Hit Best Level In 16 Months

CHICAGO (AP)—Prices of prime cattle rose to the best level in 16 months at the Union Stockyards Wednesday.

This occurred only a short distance from the point where Democrats were going about the uproarious business of picking a presidential nominee.

Cattle prices could have an influence on the election battle. The "farm problem" is a potential campaign issue. And livestock prices are a healthy chunk of farm income.

Buyers paid as high as $31.00 a hundred pounds for high prime steers. Four additional loads of prime steers sold at $30.25 to $30.50. It was the first time in 16 months that cattle have commanded as much as $30.00.

Continues
Price gains ranged from 50 cents to $1.50 a hundred pounds, continuing an advance which has run for the past few weeks. A month ago the same type of cattle as Wednesday brought $30.00 or more could sell no higher than $25.00.

Two Pen Escapees Caught; Another Not Located Yet

... Left Wednesday

Two Penitentiary escapees who left the prison Wednesday evening were reportedly captured by a State Safety Patrolman late Wednesday night south of the Humboldt junction on U.S. 75, Penitentiary officials reported.

A third escapee, Harry iWand, 34, who left the prison with the captured pair, has not been located.

All three were trustees.

The captured men are believed to be Robert Ballard, 36, and Richard Ehlin, 42.

The escapees were reportedly southbound in a state prison truck when they were apprehended.

Wand was serving two years for burglary. Ballard was sentenced to four years for forgery and Ehlin is serving a five-year sentence for burglary.

Office Of Solicitor General Has Long, Interesting Past

By MARGARET DVORAK
Star Staff Writer

The office of Solicitor General of the United States to which Lincolnite J. Lee Rankin has been named by President Eisenhower has a long and interesting history.

It has often been a stepping stone toward a federal judgeship or other high office, including the Presidency in one case.

William Howard Taft, who was solicitor general from 1890-1892, moved on to a federal judgeship, the Presidency and the office of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court.

Others

Charles Evans Hughes moved on to Chief Justice after serving as solicitor general. Stanley Reed and Robert H. Jackson later became Supreme Court justices.

Francis Biddle and J. Howard McGrath moved on to attorney general from the office.

Apart from matters of personality and power, the office itself has an interesting history.

Created In England
The term "solicitor" originally meant a legal practitioner in the court of chancery in England. A solicitor differed from an "attorney" in that he was a practitioner in the courts of equity instead of common law.

The office of solicitor general was first created in England in 1461. An officer of the Crown entrusted with the duty of defending the king's interests in court, he was deputy to the attorney general and called "solicitor" because he was most concerned with matters in chancery.

During Tudor times the solicitor general was customarily a member of the House of Commons, and from the end of the 18th Century the office carried the honor of knighthood.

In U.S. Since 1870
The office of solicitor general was created in the United States in 1870 by act of Congress. Appointed by the President, he is an officer of the Justice Department and next in rank to the attorney general, whose duties he assumes in case of absence, disability or vacancy.

The solicitor general has special charge of the business of, and represents, the government in the Supreme Court. When requested by the attorney general, he may conduct and argue any case in which the United States is interested in any court in the U.S.

In 1855, J. Lee Rankin's predecessor, Simon E. Sobeloff, caused some consternation and embarrassment to the government when he refused to sign a brief of a case which the Justice Department argued before the Supreme Court.

The brief, which urged the court to uphold the 1951 dismissal of Dr. John P. Peters from the Public Health Service, had to be signed by Attorney General Brownell instead of by Solicitor General Sobeloff, who normally would represent the government before the Supreme Court. Sobeloff was convicted Peter's dismissal violated the 5th Amendment's ban on depriving a person of liberty or property without due process of law.

Wilson addressed the national encampment of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

"We have the same flexibility as any potential enemy to augment our power in this or that particular field in accordance with the best judgment that we can make of what changes are necessary in our military defense program," Wilson said.

Some 40,000 visitors are jamming Dallas for the annual VFW convention. Highlight of Wednesday night's schedule was the "Pageant of Drums" at the Cotton Bowl.

"Confident"
Wilson "drew heavy applause from the overflow crowd when he said:

"I am confident that, in any war in which the United States becomes engaged, we have today the weapons and military power to inflict a disastrous defeat on any enemy.

"I do not believe any potential enemy will risk an attack on the United States in view of the consequences which will be so destructive to the aggressor," Wilson added.

Rankin, as solicitor general, will represent the United States in cases before the Supreme Court. He also will decide when the government should appeal adverse court decisions.

Rankin, a Republican and an assistant attorney general since 1953, was named in a recess appointment Tuesday by President Eisenhower. He still must be confirmed by the Senate after it convenes next year.

BISHOP AMBROSE PINGER

Bishop Pinger Arrives In Hong Kong

HONG KONG (AP)—American Bishop Henry Ambrose Pinger, 59, arrived in Hong Kong aboard the British freighter Shillong after five years in Chinese Communist prisons.

He is the last imprisoned American bishop to leave the Red China mainland.

Pinger who comes from Lindsay, Neb., was released from Ward Road Prison in Shanghai, Aug. 8 and stayed in the Franciscan mission in Shanghai before boarding the Shillong.

In World War II he was interned by the Japanese. After the war, he visited the United States and then returned to China.

Pinger was arrested Aug. 5, 1951 at Tsingtao and later moved to the Shanghai prison. No official announcement of the Communist charges against him was made.

Although he has been reported suffering from high blood pressure, the bishop said in a telephone conversation before he left Shanghai that his health was "fair considering the circumstances."

A native of St. Bernard, Neb., Bishop Pinger first came to China in 1928. He was consecrated a bishop of the Franciscan Order at Chicago in 1937 and soon afterward took up his duties as bishop of the Chowtsun Diocese.

Truman Pledges To Fight For Harriman Nomination 'Until The Last Dog Dies'

... Stop Adlai Drive Loses Steam

By ERNEST B. VACCARO
CHICAGO (AP) — Harry S. Truman stood amid what looked like the wreckage of his stop-Stevenson campaign Wednesday and vowed to fight for Averell Harriman "until the last dog dies."

But aids of the former President whispered to news-men that the last dog was breathing his last. They predicted that Truman's next major move would be to start writing a speech pledging support to Adlai Stevenson.

Thus the "old man from Missouri"—who floored all the south-sayers with his 1948 victory over Thomas E. Dewey—faced a probable major defeat in his 73rd year.

Even as the ex-President used a news conference to blast Stevenson as lacking in "fighting spirit," in the stop-Adlai drive lost its steam. This was partly because of Gov. Robert B. Meyner's decision to throw New Jersey's 36 ballots to Stevenson, following up Gov. G. Mennen Williams' earlier announcement he would release his Michigan delegation.

Truman's strategy had been directed at keeping "favorite sons" in the race in an effort to force a deadlock that would make Stevenson's nomination impossible.

"It's all over now," one of Truman's closest confidants whispered. Another, Samuel I. Rossmann, Truman's New York lawyer, gloomily acknowledged the wind was out of the sails.

But Truman, while obviously conscious that things were not breaking his way, refused to toss in the towel. He insisted Stevenson is not "a dynamic and fighting candidate" such as Harriman and such as the party needs.

Under questioning, however, Truman said that with a strong platform Stevenson "could win all right, with plenty of help, and I am offering him help, if he is nominated."

"I think he would need the help of the old man from Missouri," he added.

Kind words for Stevenson may come later, when Truman addresses the closing session of the convention Friday night, but Wednesday he was all for Harriman.

Stevenson, Truman said, "lacks the kind of fighting spirit that we need to win" and is tied up with "conservative minority group" content to "act as caretakers under a Republican administration."

Rep. James Roosevelt, Calif., son of the man Truman succeeded in the White House, shook his balding head after the Truman outburst. Roosevelt wears an "Adlai" button.

"Mr. Truman just has no knowledge of how to back off from a fight, no knowledge of how to withdraw gracefully," Roosevelt said. "I'm sorry, too. He was needed in the party."

Roosevelt's tone was one usually reserved for a requiem.

Ordered Out
CONVENTION HALL, Chicago, Ill. — A New York banner for Adlai Stevenson was ordered out of the Democratic National Convention by Permanent Chairman Sam Rayburn.

He ordered the sergeant at arms to take it away.

"As long as I am chairman," Rayburn said, as he interrupted a speech by Sen. Robert S. Kerr of Oklahoma, "there will be no banners."

Rayburn complained that it was an "unauthorized banner." Some delegate leaped up and tore down the banner from its standard.

A big roar went up from the crowd.

"Overjoyed"

HONOLULU (AP) — Army Pfc. Borden Stevenson said he was "overjoyed" to hear reports that his father might win the Democratic presidential nomination in Chicago on the first ballot.

The boy gets out of the Army late this month and said he hopes to campaign with his father, Adlai Stevenson.

Some mentioned polls showing President Eisenhower is leading all others who aspire to the presidency.

"Remember what happened in 1948," young Stevenson said.

NEW YORK (AP) — About 250 persons attended funeral services for Arthur Bliss Lane, 62, former U.S. ambassador to Poland. He died Sunday of a liver inflammation.

Promotion For Rankin

Early reports that Lincoln's J. Lee Rankin had earned substantial promotion as one of the key figures of the Eisenhower administration were validated this week with the announcement of a presidential appointment naming him United States Solicitor General.

He will assume those duties in full subject to confirmation next January by the U.S. Senate.

Rankin—a native Nebraskan—he was born and reared at Hartington—a Lincoln man during the course of his professional career left the private practice of law in 1953 on call from the administration to become assistant attorney general in charge of the office of legal counsel. It was in that capacity that he distinguished himself in the presentations of the government's argument in the basic case which led to the Supreme Court 1954 ruling banning public school segregation.

Nebraskans are pleased to learn of his recognition on merit. It recalls to them that more than at any other time in history this state has provided the nation with men of high professional substance—that the state which, itself, is becoming distinguished for its contribution to high national service. These men have amply demonstrated their capacities, moving ever upward in public service. The state is proud of Fred Seaton who now occupies the cabinet post of Secretary of Interior, of former Governor Val Peterson who is directing the nation's civil defense program, of Clarence Davis who is assistant Secretary of Interior, of Sam Waugh, now head of the Export-Import bank, and of the others serving variously and well. It is happy to reflect that Mr. Rankin is not among the least of these.

Nasser Is Softening?

Observers believe they detect a softening in the attitude of Egypt's Premier Nasser and that leads to the stronger hope that the troubled Suez Canal issue will be resolved a considerable distance short of a world crisis.

Most indicative news to that point was given by Foreign Minister Hamidul Haq Chowdhry, of Pakistan, following talks with leaders of the Arab States. Chowdhry said Nasser expressed a readiness to permit an acceptable form of international supervision over Egypt's operation of the canal.

That does not say that Nasser is prepared to retreat from his ground of Egyptian ownership or from operation of the canal for Egypt's gain, or from his determination to seize the property of others without due process. But it doesn't have to mean that. What is significant is that he is prepared to bargain. It leads to thoughts, that are not without foundation on the basis of international record, that Nasser is and always was more interested in promoting some immediate advantages for Egypt than in owning and operating a canal. It is rather in character for revolutionary dictators to promote quick money from whatever nation or nations are most vulnerable. In seizing countries with hungry citizens and empty treasuries the problem of making good on promises of better days too frequently turn to attempts to put the squeeze on outsiders. Peaceful long range programs for rehabilitation of such depressed countries with their truculent people rank rather far down on a dictator's list of best things to do.

There is a lesson for the United States and especially for Secretary of State Dulles. It was unwise for the secretary to pitch off this dangerous incident by a summary disinheritance of Egypt. It gave Nasser a springboard and the opportunity he needed for hasty benefits. It would have been better for the secretary to have followed the more prudent policy of the past in the Aswan dam matter, simply saying nothing, but continuing the restraint on the loan and the aid pending satisfactory steps by Nasser to prove good faith and responsibility.

So Much Yet To Be Done

If one is to criticize recent issue of the University of Nebraska's Summer Report, a magazine devoted to comment on the state's development of its natural resources, it would be that there are too few copies of it—far too

Of Men And Things

By J. E. LAWRENCE

CHICAGO—This is written to appear in type on the morning when the nominating speeches are scheduled to get under way—to be followed by the call of the states. The drive and the bargaining for delegates had acquired mounting intensity but that is the way it always is and in any open convention always will be. There is nothing bad about it—to draw upon a much abused phrase, it makes the wheels go 'round. More amusing—and in all of this pushing and shoving there actually ought to be some fun—you can have it any way you order it simply by picking up various papers, turning an ear to the chatter of television or training eyes upon what columnists have written. It has been that kind of convention up until now.

You hear that Stevenson has been stopped and cannot win the nomination. You also hear that Stevenson is sure to be nominated. You learn, if you keep your ears open, that Harriman has not made any substantial gains. If you tune in on the undercurrents of the dark hotel corridors, you discover that Harriman has made startling gains. Then the little bird with the saucy look in his eye sings its song that the man to watch is Lyndon Johnson. Another little bird, an equally sweet singer, talks about Symington. This is the way we see it in spite of all the rumors, gossip, bargaining, hair-pulling and other tricks. Nothing has developed to lead to the conclusion that some favorite son or some dark horse is going to be nominated. Nothing short of a miracle, it seems to us on the basis of present evidence, will tear the nomination from the hands of Adlai Stevenson. If anybody has been gaining, Stevenson has been picking up strength. Harriman seems to have been failing despite the claims of his active supporters. Stevenson may have to bargain with Johnson of Texas—no has been tough thus far. Stevenson does not enjoy bargaining.

At no Democratic convention in recent years has the name of a Nebraskan, W. J. Bryan, three times a candidate for the presidency, come up so often. Truly there was so much of genius in the choice of words, so much of emotion that the thousands assembled in the convention hall were reminded vividly of the enduring contributions of Jefferson, Jackson, Cleveland, Wilson, and Roosevelt. Harry Truman sat on one side of the convention hall and chuckled happily while Gov. Clement tossed his choicest jabs at the Republicans. Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt sat on the other and seemed equally happy.

Women in a very large sense have dominated this convention. Never before has an entire afternoon program been given over exclusively to addresses by women—in this case, with one exception, by women seated in Congress and seeking reelection. There were seven of them on the day's program, and one of the favorites, Mrs. Gracie Pfohl, has been spear-heading the fight for public power at Hells Canyon. She faces a particularly bitter fight, it is said. At the night session the man who is the target of the full fury of the Republican congressional campaign, Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon, let fly without pulling any punches. When Sen. Morse lets fly, usually a lot of fur flies. He may not toss his listeners such bon mots as Clement's reference to John Foster Dulles as "the greatest ungilded missile" or the constant reference to Nixon as the "vice hatchet man" but Morse always can deliver to the complete satisfaction of an audience.

There are those who in critical spirit seem to think this has been a dead convention. It has become lively enough to please anyone and it isn't over yet.

few for a publication that belongs in the hands of every citizen.

This summer's issue devotes its interest to water. Going back to weather records from 1876 the Nebraska pattern seems to be one of rhythmic periods of drought or abundant rainfall. It notes that the 11 year period from 1876 to 1887 was one of superabundant rainfall. It was dry from 1887 to 1896, moderately wet again from 1896 to 1910, normal to dry from 1910 to 1931, excessively dry from 1931 to 1941, very wet from 1941 to 1952 and, now, dry again. It would indicate that for several more years Nebraska cannot count on normal rainfall, that its difficulties in maintaining adequate farm production will keep the state's primary economy in an uncertain, speculative state, more apt to be pessimistic than optimistic. Further it is not reassuring to note from the tabulations of the past 80 years coincided with generally depressed conditions not only in the agricultural sections but over the nation.

The University Report turns from the chart of periodic droughts and finds in contrast that Nebraska is a state unusually blessed with water—a long time average of 22.8 inches a year plus an unusual supply of moving underground water. With nature blessing the state with 100 million acre feet of water the Report observes it appears that Nebraska could enjoy the luxury of being "recklessly extravagant with it." Yet most of its goes to waste as far as useful human employment of it goes.

This state in recent years has moved positively toward greater conservation of its most valuable natural resource, it has charted its way toward ever-normal production and escape from periodic drought. But it is still a long road. There is so much yet to be done.

Whose Inquiry?

Teenage delinquency plaguing Thurston County and bringing on a concerned investigation of conditions resulting from Nebraska Indian reservation life should be considered in its correct light.

It is not the Nebraska Indians that are up for examination. It is rather an inquiry into policies and general behavior toward a problem of integration that has been unrealistically conducted. And since the investigators belong to the general group which has fixed and conducted the policies it becomes a matter of self-examination. If that point is missed or slurred away then the whole study and all of the findings will become as worthless as ashes.

This is an enlightened nation, a veritable jewel in the crown of history, especially that part of it that stresses the humanities and the emphasis on individual justice. But regardless of the money it has spent and the effort it has expended it has not achieved a distinguished record with its minorities. It would do well to reapproach the entire problem. If its good intentions cannot be improved then as a matter of national interest in success and achievement it should make this program for justice to minorities a going concern.

Harriman Seen Not Gaining Enough

CHICAGO — This is the day when delegation after delegation gets its brief moment before the TV cameras to announce its vote for the man who may become President. It's also a day when you can hear any rumor you want to hear for any candidate and when you can start a rumor on your own and within an hour get it repeated back to you as the gospel truth.

In this writer's opinion, however, here's how the candidates line up at the start of the balloting.

1. Stevenson is definitely in the lead. He and Kefauver have a friendly, firm alliance. The Tennessee senator has been working night and day to swing his own ex-delegates to Stevenson. There is no commitment from him on the No. 2 spot.

2. Harriman has put up a heroic fight but it's an uphill fight. Harry Truman, his best backer, will throw to dark horse Sen. Stuart Symington, when the chips are down. Truman used to refer to Symington as Little Lord Fauntleroy when Stu was firing Harry's friends out of the RFC in the days of hams and mink coats, but now they're palsy-walsy.

3. Sen. Lyndon Johnson, the long, tough-trading Texan, is conducting an astute holding operation. He wants to pick the vice president, also put his assistant, Jim Rowe, in as national chairman. In return he will throw his delegates to Stevenson. Lyndon and Speaker Sam Rayburn don't want Kefauver on the ticket under any conditions; They'll take any other vice president. If Stevenson doesn't buy this Johnson package, he'll continue his holding operation and try to throw to Symington.

That's the way the players line up before the opening whistle—a game where there are no ground rules, where anything goes and where the stakes are the presidency of the United States.

Adlai Stevenson got some blunt answers during a private huddle with Sam Rizzo, chief of the Wisconsin delegation.

"Do you want to carry Wisconsin in November?" asked Rizzo. "Yes, of course," said the Democratic hopeful.

"Okay. Put Senator Kefauver on the ticket, then you stay out of Wisconsin, and the Democrats can carry the state," Rizzo told Stevenson to his face.

"I don't operate with a gun at my head," replied the ex-governor of Illinois.

Chicago cappers: Big, bald Jim Farley, the political mastermind of the Roosevelt era, huddled privately with Adlai Stevenson's lieutenant, Hy Raskin, after ex-President Truman came out for Governor Harriman. "I won't change ten votes," Farley told Raskin. "A pretty girl handing out Stevenson pins, didn't recognize Governor Harriman walking by. She sweetly offered him a Stevenson badge."

"No thanks," smiled the governor. "I am Ave Harriman." . . . Democratic National Chairman Paul Butler has been withholding convention tickets from Harriman supporters. In order to get tickets, Harriman headquarters advised several supporters to hide their Harriman buttons, go to Stevenson headquarters for tickets and claim they were Stevenson supporters. It worked.

A Kentucky delegate, disgruntled over Governor Happy Chandler's antics, grumbled: "You have to complete the sentence if you want to call Chandler Kentucky's favorite son." . . . Wyoming's Senator Joe O'Mahoney, after sitting through day-and-night sessions of the Democratic platform committee, observed wearily: "The mind cannot absorb what the behind cannot endure."

Demo Strength No Small Thing

CHICAGO — Adlai Stevenson at this point resembles Eliza crossing the ice.

The solid footing grows steadily under his feet. For example, Ohio and Michigan want to abandon their favorite sons and plump for him. New York is restive. The further shore is in sight.

But Simon Legree Truman is cracking his blacksnake whip, trying to throw Stevenson off balance and keep him from reaching safe harbor until a rip-roaring civil-rights fight can soften the harmony ice.

Working to avert it is the unlikely combination of Southern leaders and such powerful northern liberals as Eleanor Roosevelt and Walter Reuther.

Truman has nothing but scorn for their efforts. He won without the South and he thinks his candidate, Governor Averell Harriman of New York, can, too. Or maybe Truman.

Meanwhile, the former president is holding the line—or trying to—by ringing the changes on the cliché that Stevenson, because he lost in 1952, can't win. Truman, of course, sincerely believes this.

The charge does not bear examination on the record.

Fair-minded observers have long said that no Democrat could have beaten President Eisenhower in 1952. Yet Stevenson, relatively unknown, badly financed and obviously miscalculated, piled up a popular vote second only to that achieved by two men, Eisenhower who beat him and Franklin Roosevelt in 1936 when Roosevelt lost only Maine and Vermont.

The fresh Stevenson imprint was further fastened on the party when Stevenson, not a rich man, dropped everything in 1952 to help pay off the campaign deficits. The then national chairman, Steve Mitchell, sold the Stevenson eloquence at fund-raising dinners like a Hollywood agent dispensing the box-office attractions of Marilyn Monroe.

The result was that Stevenson spoke for the Democratic party in most states of the union. He proved so great a drawing card that practically every Democratic candidate since of any consequence has begged him for help, including Governor Harriman—and gotten it.

What has happened since 1952 is a political phenomenon. The party out of power, contending with one of the most popular presidents in history, has won practically every election since 1952 at the local, state and national levels. It has taken nine statehouses from the Republicans and regained control of Congress.

The caliber of the Democratic winners is, of course, important—they have been above average. They also have largely been, not Roosevelt or Truman holdovers, but new faces on the Stevenson order.

There is resentment among the delegates at the ammunition Truman is giving Republicans to throw at Stevenson should Stevenson prevail. It could break out in the clinches.

The position of Senator Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas remains an enigma.

Johnson built his reputation as majority leader on party unity. He is the matchmaker who brought Senators Walter F. George of Georgia and Hubert M. Humphrey of Minnesota together. Yet, he is still "visiting friends" while Truman rages and Northern liberals try to tip the balance toward Stevenson and cement party harmony.

BOB CONSIDINE

Clement's Wife A Help With Speech

CHICAGO — Tennessee Governor Frank Clement, the well-scrubbed William Jennings Bryan of 20th century oratory, gave the newsreel boys a preview of his fire-and-brimstone keynote speech last Sunday. The session was attended only by cameramen, Clement's attractive wife and mother-in-law, and by several aides he calls his security officers.

"I want you to listen to me carefully," he said to the latter, "and let me know how I can best do this."

Then Clement launched into his now famous revivalist performance. Near the end of the preview for the newsreels, Clement, sweat streaming down his face, held up his hands and cried, "and as we look up at the great blue bowl of the sky . . ."

There he stopped.

"Mother, should I say 'sky' or 'heaven'?" he asked.

"Heaven," mother replied.

Clement turned the sweat back on and concluded with a flourish, mentioning heaven unequivocally.

With the Lyndon Johnson boom gaining momentum, the prospects of an Eisenhower vs. Johnson race this fall has revived a campaign slogan credited to the Texan whose heart attack preceded that of the President.

Johnson was alleged to be ready to run on an "I'm sicker than Ike" platform.

Tom Dewey is back in the race for high office, he will be surprised to learn. There was a fellow around the press room today giving out publicity stamped, "Mr. Daly for president—Tom Dewey for vice president." It's the ticket (?) of the America First Republican committee, which has headquarters in Daly's parlor here in Chicago.

Lar, who calls himself "Mr. America First," makes stools and chairs. He says of Dewey, "as vice president, his amazing ability and tremendous courage would make him the best man to assist and advise the president of the United States."

THE NEIGHBORS SAY

The Ageless Battle Of The Old And New

By MONA B. PARKER
Always there is the nostalgic sigh for the "good old days" . . . and always the eager proponent in defense of modern living and its conveniences. Ideal adjustment, of course, combines the best qualities of each . . .

Reed O'Hanlon of the Blair Pilot-Tribune maintains we're only kidding ourselves when we poke fun at what today has to offer, all the while loudly wishing for a return of the time of Maw's home-made ice cream, the old swimming hole and the joy of hitching up the buggy to go courtin' the girl friend. He likes radio, automobiles, good roads, television, dial phones, natural gas and electricity, and will retain his fond memories—all the while happily depending on the automatic servants that make living a joy today.

The Orleans Chronicle comments, architecturally, that "another advantage today has over the good old days is that it's much easier to store junk in the garage than it was to store it in the attic."

Mrs. J. W. Tyler, columnist for the Peru Pointer, was writing in the same vein but she chose to cast her preference for what was rather than what is or will be, and with good reason. After admiring all the streamlined innovations of a friend's new kitchen, she was surprised to hear her complain that fashion had provided her with no towel rack and no place to anchor one. " . . . So we came home to our old-fashioned kitchen and gratefully draped the tea towels over a homely old rack which we always meant to paint but never have, over in a spacious spot by the open window . . ."

Wymore Editor Earl Funk is a little old-fashioned, too. He's been tempted to get one of these new-fangled lawn-mowers that do all the work and you just follow along and guide them. But he heard of one Wymore man who got so angered at his when it refused to work that he threw a hammer at it and knocked off the carburetor and a few other vital parts.

So "while the old hand mower lasts, and as long as there are boys making a business of mowing lawns, guess we'll not put our patience to that test."

Times have changed, compared Arch Jarrell of the Grand Island Independent. A generation ago, boys could hardly wait until they were grown up enough to wear long pants "Nowadays men can hardly wait until summer so they can wear shorts."

Probably no argument could be found anywhere, except possibly down Brazil way, against something that returned to Fullerton this week out of the past. After a five-year interlude of higher prices, the nickle cup of coffee was enjoying all the enthusiastic attention it was receiving there . . .

The Syracuse Journal-Democrat had something to say on a commodity that has seen no reduction in the matter of price, but rather a continual upswing. It was a bit of wry humor any working newspaperman could appreciate. "The J-D has probably become the most expensive shelf paper you ever used. The manufacturers or jobbers or somebody hiked the price of newsprint again this month."

John Carter took a look at the wages Clark youngsters and others were getting for the current seasonal occupation of detasseling corn. Sixty-five cents an hour plus transportation, he didn't consider too bad.

"You are a young old-timer if you can remember when you worked all day for 50 cents or 75 cents and either walked or rode Old Dobbin back and forth to the job. And I can remember when my dad used to tell about working during the panic of 1897. He dug wells 12 hours a day for 5 cents an hour, or 60 cents a day."

State Civil Service

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: During my pre-primary campaign for the legislature, I advocated a civil service system for state institution employees. Some of these employees supported me; others told me (confidentially) that they were afraid to help me. This fear is typical among institution employees.

Regardless of years of service, qualifications, and value to the state, these employees can be and often are discharged for any and all kinds of excuses trumped up by the official in charge or in deference to the Board of Control.

I know of an excellent assistant superintendent who had been at one of our institutions for almost 20 years (including four years in the Army during World War II) who was fired recently, primarily, I believe, because the Board of Control considered him a Morris sympathizer.

There is no substitute for satisfied employees who feel secure, know they have assurance of promotions, increased salaries, and more important, feel that their work is appreciated.

All this is absent under the present Board of Control and there is nothing to indicate that the vicious, archaic spoils system now operating will be corrected.

Civil service is the answer and the next legislature should work in that direction.

C. V. KELLER

Financial Pinch

Lincoln, Neb.
To the editor of The Lincoln Star: So now the shoe pinches; that is, the money shoe. Election Commissioner Harold Gillett probably knew in advance when he billed the so-called City-County Building Authority for $6,433.04 as its share of the special election costs that it would not be paid by such authority.

In the first place, the entire building authority, including the lock, stock and barrel, has been positively and absolutely repudiated by the sovereign voters of this community. They were not authorized to issue so much as one thin dime in rental revenue bonds. This mandate from the electorate should be sufficient, but probably not in this case, where the purchase of high-priced real estate at the expense of the taxpayers is involved.

Secondly, this on-paper authority has no money in its own right. Having already received a budget of $9,000, they should consider that enough money from public funds.

He was better than I;
He had all such victories cost.

Lack of those defeated me.

No excuse have I to make

Did my best for victory's sake.
Found it wasn't good enough.

Who Wants To Be Straight-A Student?

There are more scholastic dunces who succeed after leaving school than there are brilliant scholars who make names and fortunes for themselves.

That is one of those tricky statements that are as true as pine-yum on a wool suit. What makes it tricky is that the scholastic dunces might succeed two to one, but they also fail two to one. There are about five of them to every scholar.

No matter how it figures out, though, the parent who goes into desolated deliriums because sonny's report card doesn't show straight "A's," like little Algren's down the street, is overlooking the facts of life. Scholarship isn't the only key to achievement.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, Army chief of staff, recently told military students at the Citadel, Charleston, S. C., that West Pointers who graduated in the upper half of their class did not do a great deal better in their later careers than those who rated in the lower half.

An examination of the records of successful World War II generals indicates that it is only a slight advantage to graduate in the upper half of the class," he said, going on to add that some tail-enders had done pretty well, as witness Gen. George Custer, George Pickett and George Patton. (It looks like being named George might help if you're not so good at books.)

Perhaps the slight advantage Gen. Taylor was talking about is represented in fellows like Robert E. Lee, Douglas MacArthur and Dwight Eisenhower, whose West Point report cards were right nice to look at. But who wants to start an argument?

The thing is that whether in military or civilian life, scholarship isn't worth a punctured persimmon by itself. It is what a good set of clubs is to a golfer, or a slide rule to an engineer. The clubs won't play golf all by themselves, and the slide rule won't multiply two by two without the engineer to adjust it. Scholarship might as well stay in the library, safely between book covers, if there isn't a strong character to take advantage of it.

That is why, I think, schools must always be secondary in the upbringing of children. They are the places of scholarship, of book learning. Home is the place where character grows, and its growth starts long before kindergarten. What people call scholarship is a thoroughly standardized thing in the educational years. It represents top grades in all lines of study, and probably indicates an extremely well-balanced mind, but not necessarily one that is brilliant in any one field. Later on, it is different. There would not be much disagreement with calling Albert Einstein a scholar in his later years, but his scholastic reports did not boost him to the top of all classes in his student years.

Report cards are the best measuring sticks that have been devised in the schools. But any parent who accepts them as a complete evaluation of a child whether with happiness or economic success in mind, is ignoring two-thirds of the training the youngster is entitled to.

That is the training he should get at home in honesty, perseverance and personality.

LINCOLN CAN EXPECT SCHOOL LEVY HIKE; NO WORD AFTER CLOSED-DOOR MEETING

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln School District levy may be set next Tuesday, but there was no official comment from the closed-door meeting Wednesday between school officials and County Board of Equalization members.

Speculation on a school levy increase has ranged from four to 6.14 mills for the school district's record-breaking 1956-57 tax needs of $6,151,849.41 in connection with its $7,617,785.86 budget. Last year's levy was 37.03 mills.

County Board Chairman Russell Brehm said Commissioner Del Lienemann, Equalization Board chairman, and David Sell, the school district's business manager, would meet before a levy could be determined.

Wednesday's closed-door session included Dr. Steven Watkins, superintendent of schools; Willis Hecht, school board attorney; Dale Fahrbruch, deputy county attorney; Glenn Turner, county superintendent of schools, and the three county commissioners.

WILBERT

While no meeting details were disclosed, it was believed the discussion centered on two items:

1. School statutes requiring that school districts, except Class V districts (Omaha), furnish the county clerk and county equalization board with the district's financial condition and requirements on a form prescribed by the commissioner of education.

2. The percentage of the 1956 taxes to be collected under the new levy during the current school year in determining the proper levy.

Before 1955, the school district has figured about 60 per cent collection of the new levy in certifying its tax needs.

Advised Reduction

But last year, Lienemann figured at least a 65 per cent collection in advising that the school board's tax requests could be reduced and a lower levy set.

Several weeks ago, Lienemann disclosed figures that the school districts received approximately $300,000 more than anticipated from 1955-56 tax collections under the 65-35 formula.

The figures disclosed unofficially that between 75 and 80 per cent of the 1955 tax was collected during the current 1955-56 school year.

No financial statement on the state-prescribed form has been filed by the Lincoln district with the county clerk.

Laws Revised

Under 1955 revised school laws, Section 79-431 provides all school districts, except Class V (Omaha), prepare a budget on forms prescribed by the Commissioner of Education, separately showing budget expenditures, revenues received from taxation, revenues available from other sources, unencumbered balances and necessary cash reserve.

A second section, 79-435, provides no tax may be levied until such statement has been prepared, considered, certified and filed with the county clerk and county superintendent.

It is believed that a Lincoln school district levy will await the district's filing of such a statement.

Corn For Silage Needs Harvesting Before It Browns

If farmers are to get the most possible from drought-damaged corn, the crop should be harvested for silage before it becomes brown and dry, Extension Dairyman C. W. Nibler of the University of Nebraska said Wednesday.

The success of making silage from such crops depends on moisture content and thorough packing he explained.

Crops that are too dry do not pack satisfactorily. As a result, the silage molds, spoils and turns brown.

Fodder crops with 50 per cent or more of green leaves should make good silage without addition of water, Nibler said.

Addition of conditioners or preservatives is not recommended, he added.

Interstate Road North Of Platte Seen As Violation

Sen. Foote Says Law Requires Highway Serve Major Centers

HASTINGS, Neb. (AP)—State Senator Kathleen Foote said Wednesday that to place the proposed interstate highway north of the Platte River is to "violate the letter and spirit of the federal highway law which requires that the interstate system serve the major centers of population and important defense installations."

She made the statement after presenting a South Platte Union Chamber of Commerce proposal to State Engineer L. N. Riss asking that a route south of the Platte be considered.

The senator said Riss had previously favored the route south of the Platte but had changed his views under "heavy pressure."

"Need Unite"

"We do not ask that this four-lane highway run down our main street as do some communities in Nebraska," she declared. "This should not be a north Platte-south Platte battle as Riss suggests. We need unity in planning a project as large as this and should have the right to expect a matter of routing to proceed on the most practical and economical basis."

Route To Affect Southwest Iowa, Rosenblatt Says

OMAHA (AP)—Mayor Carleton Woodward Jr. of Council Bluffs was told Wednesday by Omaha Mayor Rosenblatt that the route of the east-west Interstate Highway "will have direct effects on the future of Southwest Iowa and Douglas County in Nebraska."

After the meeting, Mayor Woodward said he would "request complete and specific information immediately from the Iowa Highway Commission on its proposed route. He said he had no personal feelings "at this time" about the route proposed by the Iowa commission.

Possible Brownout Faces Grand Island

GRAND ISLAND, Neb. (AP)—Recent picketing at the new Grand Island power plant has resulted in an emergency situation, Mayor Merle McDermott said Wednesday.

The city is taking steps to protect its interests, he said.

Construction of the three million dollar plant, being pushed to completion to meet a pressing power need, is expected to be finished early next year.

McDermott said the Omaha Steamfitters Union Local 464 is attempting to organize the O'Hara Plumbing Co., a sub-contractor at the power plant. The prime contractor is Wray M. Scott Co., Omaha.

The city was advised by Scott that it could not continue work because its men, who are members of the union, would not cross the picket line.

McDermott said the city is threatened with a possible brownout.

"We are taking all the current that Consumers Public Power District can furnish us and should our turbo-generator in the present plant develop trouble we would be short 4,000 kilowatts, which would mean immediate brownout," he said. "The generators are now operating far above their maximum capacity for safe operation."

"A brownout would primarily affect hospitals, business firms, our water system and our fire department. The city government feels that this is not a matter of interfering with private rights but is a matter of promoting the public welfare," McDermott added.

After a conference between city officials and those involved, the police and mayor ordered pickets to leave. The mayor said he understands, however, picketing may be resumed.

He said he intended to ask the city council to take court action if necessary.

20 Of Top Ranking Corn Acreage Counties In Nebraska

WASHINGTON, Mo. — A Census Bureau report Wednesday showed that 20 of the 100 top ranking counties in the nation in the acreage of corn planted in 1954 were in Nebraska.

However, only one, Dawson, was among the top 100 in corn harvested for grain. Dawson's 131,975 acres planted ranked the county 48th nationally. The county harvested 5,808,711 bushels to rank 97th so far as crop was concerned.

Custer County ranked tenth in acres — 132,346 — but harvested 3,767,994 bushels to rank below the top 100.

In wheat acreage the same year two Nebraska counties were among the top 100 and both ranked higher in production than in acreage.

Cheyenne County was 28th in the nation in acreage — 206,600 — and 16th in production — 4,278,476 bushels.

Perkins County's 134,050 acres ranked 32nd while the county's 2,291,478 bushel output was 70th. Acreages for both corn and wheat in Nebraska in 1954 were slightly under averages for the previous 10 years. The per acre averages were close to the 10 year averages.

The other Nebraska counties listed in the corn ratings with their acreage, ranking and harvests:

Saunders, 170,133 acres, 13th in acreage, 4,667,283 bushels harvested; Cedar, 149,929, 22nd, 5,609,891; Knox, 146,914, 27th, 4,622,470; Buffalo, 144,003, 31st, 4,403,745; Lancaster, 143,163, 32nd, 3,739,969; Platte, 143,002, 33rd, 3,791,400; Antelope, 138,632, 39th, 4,060,649; Gage, 137,728, 41st, 3,957,547; York, 132,405, 47th, 4,486,294; Cuming, 130,156, 51st, 4,816,033; Otoe, 128,769, 55th, 3,786,721; Cass, 125,843, 58th, 1,136,010; Madison, 125,755, 60th, 3,746,497; Butler, 125,490, 61st, 3,730,355; Boone, 122,061, 71st, 2,880,400; Dodge, 119,142, 78th, 3,178,929; Burt, 115,594, 90th, 4,772,340; Seward, 114,332, 95th, 3,378,866.

Opposition To Ton-Mile Tax Continues

PIERCE, Neb. (U) — Secretary-Treasurer Don Magdanz said Wednesday Nebraska Livestock Feeders Assn. directors have voted unanimously to continue the association's opposition to the proposed ton-mile tax.

The board action followed a report of an investigation by the association's legislative and tax committee headed by Leo Kneivel of West Point.

Magdanz said the association takes the position that in the case of livestock feeders the tax is not a consumers tax but rather a producers tax and would have to be absorbed by livestock shippers. In the case of most other merchandise, he said, the cost of the tax would be added to the retail prices and paid by the consumer.

Magdanz said that since livestock feeders do well on an open and competitive market with the price determined by supply and demand, absorption of the tax by the feeders would be discriminatory.

Nebraskan Finally Sees Convention

... Hopes Fulfilled
By J. E. LAWRENCE
Editor, The Lincoln Star
CHICAGO — T. C. Brennan of Newcastle, Neb., well along in his seventies, saw his hopes fulfilled here today.

A staunch Democrat since the days of William Jennings Bryan, he had always cherished the hope of attending a session of a Democratic National Convention. Keen as his interest in politics has been, he had never made it before.

Many Nebraskans
And hard as tickets are to get—and they are tough—Brennan was at the amphitheater, happy and excited, along with a large number of other Nebraskans. Among Nebraskans attending this Chicago gathering:

James L. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Clark, Tom Henderson, William B. Taylor, John B. Morrison and son, Mr. and Mrs. A. Clifford Anderson, James L. Sellers and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Golden, all of Lincoln.

Minnie Olson, Frank Tesor, James F. Green, Bernard J. Boyle and Gordon C. Preble, all of Omaha.

Samuel Dietrich, W. D. Newberry and Keith Neville, North Platte.

Mr. and Mrs. Thane Davis and Mrs. Essie Davis, Hyannis.

Gerald Moore, Nebraska.
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Hanson, Newcastle.

Vince Jones, Columbus.
Mr. and Mrs. Holsinger, Rushville.

Osceola Crash Claims Life Of Pedestrian

OSCEOLA, Neb. (AP)—Harvey L. Berglund Jr., 39, Seattle, Wash., died in an Osceola hospital Wednesday of injuries suffered a few hours, earlier in a car-pedestrian accident 2 1/2 miles west of here.

Sheriff Willard Cornell said Berglund was on the highway, apparently hitchhiking, when he was hit by a car driven by Monte Rhoades, 19, of Waverly, Iowa. Five persons were riding with Rhoades.

The mishap occurred on Highway 92-30A.

The death boosted the state highway fatality toll for the year to 173 as compared to 177 at this time in 1934.

By J. E. LAWRENCE
Editor, The Lincoln Star
CHICAGO, Nebraska Headquarters—We met up with an old acquaintance and associate who's attending this convention along with the neighboring South Dakota delegation. Ken Holm, who lives on a farm in the rich Jim Valley of South Dakota, is the Democratic candidate for the United States Senate seat now occupied by Sen. Clifford Case.

Holm served with this writer as a member of the Missouri Basin Survey Commission, composed of three members of the United States Senate, three of the House and five civilians.

Two years ago he was the Democratic candidate for the United States Senate against Sen. Mundt and at that time succeeded in reducing the margin in a traditionally staunch Republican state.

Public Power Advocate
Holm has given a great deal of attention to rural electrification and public power. He reported there has been spotted but extensive drought damage in South Dakota, with resulting unrest among farmers. About 10 days ago it started to rain in the dry areas and it has been at it since.

Another member of that commission who is attending the convention is Rep. Wayne Aspinall of Colorado. He is related to Nebraska by marriage. Mrs. Aspinall formerly lived in Lincoln, where she was born and educated.

Good Memory
DENVER, Colo. (AP)—A witness at a federal income tax evasion trial had no trouble recalling a $470 payment he said he made as a slot machine payoff to the defendant. He had tucked the money in the watch pocket of a pair of trousers, then absentmindedly sent the pants to the cleaners. When they came back the $470 was gone and he had to dig up another payment of the same amount.

STANTON DELAPLANE

POSTCARD

There is a good deal to be seen around Chicago these days. If you keep your eyes open. I have been seeking significance in this affair.

I think it is significant that both parties are talking about higher farm prices.

It is also significant that both national conventions will be held in high class barns—the Democrats presently in the Chicago Stockyards, the Republicans aimed for the San Francisco Cow Palace.

This would signify to me that cows have it better than people. Better places to meet. And everybody worried about the price on them.

This morning two ladies in bathing suits led a St. Bernard out in front of the Sheraton-Blackstone on Michigan Avenue.

The dog then sniffed the nose of an "I'm for Adlai" burro.

The dog was pledged to a soft drink and carried a little cask of it under his neck.

The whole thing stopped traffic and caused a little mob scene.

And it occurs to me that no beautiful girls in bathing suits are leading me around with a cask under the neck.

If the Democratic people want my vote, they should stop being kind to animals. Be kind to me. I have been taking a beating from the animal kingdom for quite a while. It is time for a change.

My Siamese cat has double-crossed me. This time with three fresh kittens. So I am informed by breathless long distance.

"Father, guess what! Two are black and one is gray!"

"My dear," I said, "your parent is deep in sorting out, clarifying and all the other important things we do at conventions. Is this a riddle?"

"They are kittens," she said impatiently. "The cat had kittens and they are black and gray. So cute!"

Well, this is another body blow from Nature.

For months I have been promising pure Siamese kittens to my friends.

I introduced my Siamese to some well-bred gentlemen Siamese. Crew cut cats. Ivy League types.

Now what happens when I am off clarifying the political picture? After lavishing affection on this animal to say nothing of best quality horsemeat?

The double X. The knife in the back.

At this time of year, it appears, nobody can be nice enough to animals.

Politicos are photographed patting the heads of dogs. Feeding parakeets. Slipping little presents to our furred and feathered friends.

Candidates traditionally love animals and children.

They are among mink coats. But for the mink.

If I were a candidate, I think I would state some truths in these matters.

I would say: "Ladies and gentlemen, a cat will often turn up with black and gray kittens. And the child who was in charge of this cat probably let her out of the house when you weren't looking.

"Cows have palaces. And when we need a place to meet, we must borrow it from the cows. High-priced cows whose prices will soon be higher.

"Ladies and gentlemen, my platform is to get the country back from the cows and cats and children and let the people have a chance."

After that I would let two girls in bathing suits put me on a leash and lead me down the street with a sign: "This is a Dog's Life. How About It?"

There would be a great deal of significance in that kind of campaign.

All in favor, signify in the usual manner.

CROSSWORD PUZZLE

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

BAERING DOWN ON THE NEWS

By Arthur 'Bugs' Boer

Democrats have charged the Republicans with everything on the calendar but the picture of Marilyn Monroe.

The convention has stepped the emphasis on youth and beauty, which relieved Sam Rayburn twice without the championship.

Keynote Clement sure wagon-tailed the crossroads. He snowballed the layout. It was one of these hazy limbo speeches that covers everything and touches nothing. Clement is a fellow who could talk a bear out of a cave. He's the best since William Channing Bryant mistook a melodious voice for an argument and the echo for corroboration.

They say Keynote Clement tries out his speeches in the looking glass. It will not be the first time the keynote got the nomination. Bryan did it and so did John Alden.

This is the first time since 1932 that a male Rayburn has not bird-dugged the program. Eleanor did so well pleading for youth we figured Rayburn would roll a loop in the aisles.

Mass Channel Swim Becomes Fiasco; Nobody Crosses

By JOHN FARROW
FOLKESTONE, England
The Mass Channel swim, which was expected to be the first time in six years that heavy seas and strong winds cut the field to eight starters. Fourteen would-be swimmers didn't even take a stroke. Tom Park of Lakewood, Calif., came the nearest to success by getting within five miles of Dover in 10 hours, 20 minutes before retiring.

The last one to leave the water was Jack McClelland, 210-pound Irish wrestler. He was hauled out after 11 hours, 4 minutes but was about nine miles behind Park. He and Park shared first prize, each receiving $700.

Protest Meeting
All the non-starters returned to camp bitterly critical of the officials of the British holiday firm which sponsored the swim. English swimmer Fred Oldman called a protest meeting and 10 of the 14 issued a statement lambasting the swim's organization.

They complained that observers and coaches said it was too dangerous to land on the French coast to begin the race, that the weather conditions were too bad for the swim and that a communications breakdown led to chaos at the start.

Dianna Cleverly, New Zealand, who stayed in the water just over eight hours, collected $700. Maria Meester, 17, Holland, won $500 after staying in the water 5 hours and Greta Anderson of Denmark, now living at Lakewood, Calif., collected $200 for her swim of 2 hours, 5 minutes.

Grandfather, 60-year-old grandfather from Scotland who was in the water just under 10 hours, got $350. Dogan Sahin of Turkey, 40 hours, 55 minutes, $420, and Clarence Conza, New Zealand, 1 1/2 hours, $140.

The race ran into trouble all the way. It was twice postponed because of bad weather. The crack Egyptians were banned after the nationalization of the Suez Canal and the Syrians immediately withdrew in protest against the ban.

Chiefs Triumph In Hitting Battle, 10-9

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Second Baseman Ken Tothman scored from third on a balk in the 10th inning to give the Lincoln Chiefs a 10-9 victory in a three hour and 23 minute marathon baseball game here Wednesday night.

It marked the third time the Chiefs took the lead in the slugfest, and gave Relief Pitcher Myron Hoffman his sixth victory against three defeats.

Tothman, who got three hits in five trips, gained life on Don Strick's error with two out in the top of the 10th. He went to third on a single by Sam Miley, and scored when Bauhofer balked while pitching to home run king Dick Stuart.

Stuart fanned to end the inning but the damage was already done. Stuart got only one scratch infield single in six trips to the plate as Tothman and Miley took hitting honors with three safeties apiece.

Outfielder Howard Goss hit a leadoff homer for the Chiefs in the third.
The Dukes used a pair of four-run clusters in the third and fifth innings to stay in the game.

Homers by Emil Syngel and Chuck Lundgren kept up the pace.

... Jersey Drop To 3rd
JERSEY CITY, N. J. (AP) — Southpaw Johnny Antonelli, backed up by Willie Mays' 21st home run, outdueled big Don Newcombe with a beautiful, 11-strikeout two-hitter Wednesday night against New York's heretofore reluctant Giants beat Brooklyn 1-0 and dumped the Dodgers out of second place in the hectic National League pennant race.

The defeat, second straight to the last-place Giants, slipped the world champions 2 percentage points behind Cincinnati, which swept a doubleheader at Chicago.
The only hits off Antonelli, who hadn't beaten the Dodgers since June 30, 1954, and never had pitched a complete game against them, were a two-out single by Duke Snider in the second inning and a one-out double by Charlie Neal in the eighth.

Antonelli, picking up only his 11th victory of the season against 12 defeats, retired 15 men in order (eight on strikeouts) before giving up his lone walk to Randy Jackson with two out in the seventh.

Pirates Cuff Phillies, 5-1
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Right-hander Ron Kline's five-hit pitching, backed by Roberto Clement's heads up base running and Kline's own clutch single, earned the Pittsburgh Pirates a 5-1 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies here Wednesday night.

Kline handcuffed the Phils through 4 and 2-3 innings before they could put together straight singles by Ted Kazanski, Jack Meyer, and Richie Ashburn for a 1-0 lead. Until Kazanski's line drive single, Kline had the Phils striking out, popping up and hitting into the ground. He struck out five in the first three innings.

In the eighth, Lee Walls scored the tying run on Frank Thomas' one-out fly ball after drawing a walk and going to third on Meyer's wild pitch.

Stylish Spain Stops Cardinals

Ken Tothman

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Stylish Warren Spahn scattered five hits Wednesday night as the league-leading Milwaukee Braves defeated the St. Louis Cardinals, 4-1.

The victory kept the Braves out in front of their two closest rivals in the tight National League race but Cincinnati took over the left-center spot with a doubleheader victory while Brooklyn lost to New York and dropped to third.

The crafty southpaw, in picking up his 13th win against nine defeats, walked one and struck out two, Stan Musial both times. The Cards only run came on catcher Ray Katt's solo home run to the left-center field bleachers in the third inning.

Milwaukee came back in their half of the fourth inning to score two runs on only one hit as the Redbirds chipped in three errors.

Johnny Logan led off with a single and the bases quickly became loaded on two straight bunts by Hank Aaron and Eddie Mathews. Mathews reached first when third baseman Bobby Morgan made a low throw.

The Braves first run came home on Joe Adcock's sacrifice fly to left. Outfielder Rip Repulski dropped the ball when he started to throw, allowing the runners to move up and the second run scored when Alvin Dark took the throw in and pegged the ball wildly into right field trying to nab Mathews at second.

The Braves added one run in the fifth on a walk and Logan's double to the left field corner and another in the seventh on a safe hunt by Bill Bruton, a sacrifice, groundout and Danny O'Connell's single.

Bell's Phil Wins State Fair Juvenile Feature

By RON GIBSON
Star Sports Staff Member
Phil Raasch, veteran horseman from Norfolk, showed State Fair Race Meeting patrons a classy two-year-old in Bell's Phil Wednesday.

Bell's Phil became the two-year-old king of the State Fair meeting by showing heels to the pack in the State Fair Nebraska Breeding Futurity.

The son of Morphill and Belle Mimi — both proven competitors at the Fairgrounds — led from the flagfall to win the short five-furlong event by three lengths over Omer Hall's Classic Red.

Running like the 7-5 favorite which the bettors made him, the trim, black colt did the distance in a snappy 57.25 despite swinging wide on the final turn.

Tea Napkin, owned by Lincolnite Oliver Topliff, was third two lengths behind the place horse. C. W. Pierce's Lime Boy was fourth. Real Dr., winner of the Ak-Sar-Bem Futurity, lagged.

The win was worth a net $1,245 to Raasch. Russell Gaudreau, who rode three winners Wednesday to keep his lead in the jockey race, was in the irons.

A veteran Fairgrounds campaigner, Mac Galus, won the sub feature, the six and one-half furlong seventh. The 10-year-old "Mac" took the lead on the final bend and won by a length and a half to return $29.20 straight.

Handiest winner was Dressing Time in the sixth. Dressing Time daylighted the field, winning by ten lengths.

Four Bubbles, a neck winner over Gray Pan in the first and My-T-Time, length-and-a-quarter victor in the second, combined for a $33.80 daily double.

Seevy won the third by one and one-half lengths and Gray Cobble took the fourth by a similar margin. Both were even-money favorites.

Jockey Bobby Gaffigione, riding for the first time since suffering a shoulder injury at Madison, brought Waincoat-between horses on the final turn and bested Walula by a neck in the fifth.

Ken's Star staved off a closing rush by Ruban's Streak to win the long ninth and provide Gaudreau with his eighth winner in three days.

Wednesday's betting totaled $153,381 for nine races, topping the $122,691 for the first Wednesday last year on eight races.

Thursday's program at the State Fair race meeting will be featured by a six and one-half furlong allowance race for three-year-olds and up. The purse is $1,200.

The race is the eighth and the highweights in the eight-horse field are Scomber, winner of the inaugural Purse Monday, and Grain Bin. Both are slated to carry 118 pounds.

They'll be giving away at least 10 pounds to the rest of the field, which includes two top Cornhusker circuit sprinters from the Ed Luther barns, The Snapper and Wild Grace.

Mrs. Babe Ruth Fan Of Mantle, Yankees
NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Babe Ruth is keeping a close watch on Mickey Mantle's attempts to break her late husband's home run record in a season. She is almost a daily visitor to the Yankee Stadium when the Yankees are at home.

When the slugger Yankee outfielder clouted his 42nd Wednesday night to go 13 games ahead of the Bambino's pace of 1927, Mrs. Ruth stood up and cheered as Mickey circled the bases.

Mr. Basketball, Bush Confer

Place For Everybody In Basketball—Mikan

George Mikan, all-time cage school basketball player, said that basketball players "a greater opportunity to make the college team."

This, he said, is because the big man in high school might be the average man in college. By forcing the big man away from the keyhole with wider lanes, you are teaching him to shoot from out, making him a better all-around player, Mikan pointed out.

Mikan, 6-9, told the coaches that the wider free throw lane will definitely help basketball. "We have had it quite a while in the professional ranks. It makes both the big man and the little man more proficient," he said.

"It gives the little guy more room to move around under the basket. The jump shot, of course, is the great equalizer. The smaller player is able to compete with the big man by using it," Mikan said.

He also believes it will give high school basketball players "a greater opportunity to make the college team."

This, he said, is because the big man in high school might be the average man in college. By forcing the big man away from the keyhole with wider lanes, you are teaching him to shoot from out, making him a better all-around player, Mikan pointed out.

Mikan said he had seen Wilt Chamberlain, the 7-foot Kansas University giant who will be a sophomore this year, play in a scrimmage once.

"He should break all the records in the book. He's got all the equipment he needs," he said.

Mikan is a busy man. He is currently a Republican candidate for the Third District Congressional seat in Minnesota.

Chisox Donovan Spins 2-Hitter; Shuts Out A's

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Dick Donovan shut out the impotent Kansas City Athletics on two hits Wednesday night, while Minnie Minoso, Sherm Lollar and Sam Esposito hit home runs to lead the Chicago White Sox to a 10-0 victory.

Minoso drove in four runs with his homer and two singles. Lollar and Esposito tattooed the left field fence with doubles in addition to their circuit smashes, driving in five runs between them.

Donovan, who notched his sixth victory against seven defeats, did not give up a hit until the sixth when his pitching opponent, Wally Burnette, led off with a single. The other hit, a single by Al Pizarro, in the eighth, was nullified by a doubleplay.

Burnette, who absorbed his fifth loss against two victories, was clobbered for nine runs and 13 hits before Manager Lou Boudreau finally derailed him with one out in the eighth, and after Esposito and Lollar had hit their solo homers in that frame.

The Sox added another run in the ninth off Troy Herriage when Walt Dropo singled in Minoso, who had got a one-baser and moved up on a walk to Lollar.

Tigers Blank Cleveland, 1-0

CLEVELAND (AP)—Harvey Kuenn drove in a run with an eighth-inning double to give the Detroit Tigers a 1-0 victory over the Cleveland Indians Wednesday night. Kuenn's hit, which scored Bill Tuttle from second base, broke up a pitcher's battle between Frank Lary, and Cleveland veteran Al Bolen.

The 25-year-old Lary, evening his record at 12-12, allowed the Indians only six scattered singles, but four walks and three Detroit errors got him in trouble several times.

Lemon, at 35 seeking his 197th major league victory, had scattered three singles and walked only one until Tuttle led off the eighth with a single through shortstop.

The veteran righthander got Milt Bolling on an infield grounder that moved Tuttle to second, and struck out Lary. Then came Kuenn's game-winning hit.

It was Detroit's second straight victory over the Indians, and dropped the second-place Tribe 10½ games behind the New York Yankees.

ORIOLES NIP NATS IN 12TH

BALTIMORE (AP)—Billy Gardner singled home the winning run in the 12th inning Wednesday night to give the Baltimore Orioles a 3-2 victory over the Washington Senators after Bill Wight's sensational relief pitching stopped a Senator threat.

Wight relieved starter Mike Fornieles in the 10th with one out and runners on first and third. He struck out Pete Runnels, who had driven in both Washington runs, and got Roy Sievers on an outfield fly.

Wight then struck out the next five men he faced to come within one of the major league record held by eight pitchers—the last being Whitey Ford of the New York Yankees against Kansas City on July 20.

In the 11th, Jim Lemon and Herb Pless struck out and Ed Fatzgerald looked at a third strike. Tony Roen looked at a third strike to open the 12th and Bud Byerly struck out before Eddie Yost grounded to Grady Hatton.

Yanks Bobble 4 Chances But Whip Red Sox, 6-4

NEW YORK (U)—The New York Yankees took their second straight game from the Boston Red Sox Wednesday, 6-4, but it was a shabby effort as the Bronx Bombers committed four errors.

With the score deadlocked at 3-3 in the seventh inning, New York scored three times, two of the runs coming on Billy Martin's double to right field.

Yogi Berra belted a two-run home in the sixth inning, and doubled to lead the Yankee attack on right-handed Tom Brewer, who has never beaten New York while losing six games. It was his fifth loss of the year, three to New York, against 16 victories.

A big weekday crowd of 33,002 turned out to watch three New York pitchers limit the Sox to four hits, including Jim Piersall's ninth homer with the bases empty in the sixth inning.

The other three Boston runs were unearned due to Yankee

Reds Sweep Doubleheader From Cubs

CHICAGO (U)—The Cincinnati Redlegs took both ends of a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs Wednesday, 4-3 in the 15-inning opener and 7-3 in the six-inning nightcap called because of darkness.

Rookie Frank Robinson's bases-loaded single scored Ray Jablonski with the winning run in the first game as Wally Post's grand slam homer off starter and loser Russ Meyer was Cincinnati's clutch blow in the nightcap.

Smokey Burgess followed Post's 23rd homer with his eighth round-tripper to give the Redlegs a total of 162 home runs in 114 games.

Besides the 12,930 paid patrons, the doubleheader attracted 2,334 regular or alternate delegates to the Democratic national convention.

The Cubs, who broke a 20-consecutive-inning scoring famine in the first inning of the opener, owned a 10-7 hitting edge in the second match.

Art Fowler was the winner of his eighth decision against 10 losses as Meyer, making his first start since July 9, was saddled with his fifth loss. The veteran righthander has won but one game.

In the first game, Chicago and Cincinnati had splendid opportunities to score in the lengthened contest.

Army Sgt. Catches 15-Pound Trout

ATHENS, Greece (U)—Sgt. John A. Adams, a young angler from Hayward, Wis., has claimed a world record catch of a 15 pound, 7 ounce brook trout.

If certified and approved by the fishing authorities, it will surpass the 40-year old record of 14 1/2 pounds set by Dr. W. J. Cook on the Nipigon River, Ontario, Canada, in July, 1916.

Sgt. Adams, attached to the American mission to Greece and secretary of the mission's rod and gun club, made his sensational haul while fishing in the Voldomati, north of Janina and close to the Albanian frontier. King Paul of Greece often fishes in that area.

Adams bagged the huge trout on July 21. He was so excited that he could not remember what bait or line he had used.

But he was cool enough to have the fish iced and brought to Athens.

Runner Catches Husband; May Get Spot In Olympics

LOS ANGELES (U)—Athlete Stella Walsh was married in Las Vegas, Nev., to an aviation company draftsman, she disclosed Wednesday.

Miss Walsh, 45, and Harry Olson, 33, of Northridge, Calif., flew to Las Vegas, were married by a justice of the peace and returned Wednesday. It was the first marriage for each.

The bride, who represented Poland in the 1932 and 1936 Olympic Games and hopes to compete for the United States at Melbourne, Australia, this year, reported for work, a little late, at a North Hollywood plastics company this morning.

She will fly to Philadelphia to compete in the National AATF senior women's track championships Saturday. Her husband will remain here. On Aug. 25 she will compete in the Olympic Trials at Washington, D. C.

Miss Walsh said her marriage would assure her eligibility for the Olympic team if she is successful in the trials.

She is a U.S. citizen but the International Olympics Committee ruled that a woman who competes in the Olympics for one country can compete later for another only if she is married to a citizen of that country.

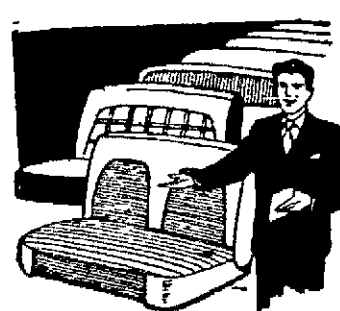

Miss Walsh said she and Olson met six years ago in Cleveland, Ohio, and met again here four years ago. She said they had been going together for the last year and a half and had been planning marriage.

Harriman Insists He Will Fight To End For Demo Nomination

CHICAGO (U) — Averell Harriman insisted Wednesday he will fight to the end for the Democratic presidential nomination despite the rising tide of pledges to Adlai Stevenson.

Harriman declared there was "absolutely no truth" to widespread reports he intended to withdraw.

"I am going to stand until the last ballot, win, lose or draw," he told newsmen.

Harriman still vowed he would win the nomination. He was banking on Stevenson failing to amass enough votes to win on the party convention's first ballot.

Ballot or Two

He said "a lot of commitments have been made" to Stevenson over the past three years, that these delegates would keep their pledge for a ballot or two, and then be free to vote for him. He said many had told him they intended to do so.

As Michigan and New Jersey

delegates plumped for the Illinoisan, Harriman-told supporters:

"If you hold this thing for a couple of hours, you'll begin to see a change."

Even as the report started that Harriman would withdraw, the New Yorker was busy racing through a heavy schedule of speeches at meetings of state delegations or groups of delegates.

He drove from hotel to hotel, talking to delegates from Montana, North Carolina, Minnesota, Michigan, South Dakota, Idaho West Virginia and Wyoming.

'Mistake'

To a small group of Michigan supporters, he said he believed their fellow delegates who voted at a caucus to support Stevenson "made a mistake, and some of them know it."

Harriman told delegates from farm states he thought the farm plank to be presented to the convention was "weak." He said if delegates from farm states wanted to fight it they would have his support.

Harriman said later he fully approved the action of the New York delegation in rejecting the proposed civil rights plank, as originally written, on the ground it was too weak.

He said the New Yorkers would attempt to amend it on the convention floor unless it is rewritten first.

Harriman said he would not be present personally on the convention floor because "it isn't customary for candidates" to be there.

The governor has held that the civil rights plank should recognize as the law of the land the Supreme Court decisions banning segregation in public schools.

Demos Say 'Ike Has Subjected U.S. To Risk Of War'

CHICAGO (INS) — The Democratic platform charged Wednesday that President Eisenhower's "handling of the day by day problems of international affairs has unnecessarily and dangerously subjected the American people to the risk of atomic war."

In a stinging personal indictment of Mr. Eisenhower, the document accused him of "failing to seek peace with determination."

It said administration of both foreign affairs and defense policy since 1953 "has confused timidity with courage and blindness with enlightenment."

In contrast, the platform pledged the Democrats "to forego bluster and bluff" and "to return to the Democratic policy of peace through strength."

The foreign policy plank, worked out by a special advisory committee of six party spokesmen on foreign affairs, said the crisis stems from "inept and vacillating Republican policy" and unnecessarily increases the risk of war in the Middle East.

While pledging aid to the Arabs for the resettlement of refugees from Israel, the Democrats called for selling and giving arms to Israel and working out security guarantees to "deter aggression and war."

Peace 'Primary'

The Democratic Party, according to the platform, recognizes peace as "a primary objective of human society." It called peace "more than a suspension of shooting while frenzied and fearful nations stockpile armaments of annihilation."

It said "a universal, effective and enforced disarmament system" is the goal of responsible men and women everywhere.

The Democratic campaign blueprint added: "The Eisenhower administration, despite its highly publicized proposals for aerial inspection, has made no progress toward this great objective."

It asserted: "We pledge the Democratic Party to pursue vigorously this great goal of enforced disarmament in full awareness that irreparable injury, even total destruction, now threatens the human race."

The GOP administration, said the Democrats, "has not offered a single concrete new idea to meet the new-style political and economic offensive of the Soviets, which represents potentially an even graver challenge than Stalin's use of force."

They added: "The Republicans seem unable to make up their minds to give us leadership, while the unity of the free world rapidly disintegrates. We need to make our peaceful purpose clear beyond dispute in every corner of the world — yet Dulles brags of 'brinks of war.'"

The platform condemns the Re-strengthen the United Nations, "determined opposition" to the admission of Red China to the U.N., a continuing effort to obtain the release of all Americans held by Peiping and a second-to-none modern defense force.

The platform condemns the Republican party "for its heartless record of broken promises to the unfortunate victims of communism" and promises to press before the U.N. for the withdrawal of Soviet troops from captive countries.

'Where To Seek Aid 'Problem Of Thurston County Officials'

Lincoln Star Special
PENDER, Neb.—Where to turn for aid appears to be the problem in Thurston County as officials discuss the Indian problem.

Sheriff John Elliott of Pender said Wednesday that he thought the county would have to ask for an act of Congress to appropriate funds for the Bureau of Indian Affairs specifically for law enforcement in Thurston County.

The sheriff, Attorney General Beck and other interested officials conferred with Gov. Victor Anderson Monday on Thurston County's Indian problem.

Of the 8,000 persons in the county, some 2,000 are Indians. Sheriff Elliott said that according to the county assessor less than 30 Indians filed personal tax returns.

Valuations this year were below the 1930's," Elliott said. He explained that there is a large renter population in the county and the farm land is run down.

He said also that some of the Indian land is non-taxable. Elliott said it is costing the county about $1,000 a month to feed the persons housed in jail. He said the problem has become worse since Indians were allowed to buy liquor.

"Indians—some of our finest Indians—are now beginning to drink," he said.

He expressed hope that the Bureau of Indian Affairs would come to the county's aid.

Schools Needed
New schools on the Omaha and Winnebago reservations are needed. At present these students attend public school at Macy and Winnebago.

The government pays $2 a day tuition for the Indian children, but so many play hooky that the schools lose about $60 a day for those who do not attend, Elliott said.

We requested a truant officer for the children, but were refused, he said.

Few recreation facilities are available. An occasional baseball or ping-pong game is all the entertainment the Indians can get, the sheriff said.

Ministers in the country try to form recreational activity for the children, but it is very difficult, he said.

FB Spokesman Criticizes Polls

"Some people worship polls to the extent they would have them replace public discussion, electoral decision and legislative action," Bernie Camp said Wednesday.

Camp, information director of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, said "the American public continues gullible, despite the fact that public opinion polls have proved erroneous many times."

At best, he said, polls are "scientific guessimates" of when interviewees said, but "many polls are not scientific, but are taken among pre-prejudiced interviewees."

Persons polled have no opportunity to study alternatives and are required to give "yes" and "no" answers to questions which require shades of classification, Camp said.

Furthermore, he said, sober consideration might change "snap-judgment" answers.

The 84-year-old priest was a classmate of Pope Pius XII in Rome.

'Firemen May Have Salary Hearing—Ash

A hearing will be given to firemen if they want one to further present their case regarding salary matters, Acting Mayor Pat Ash said Wednesday.

The Council originally gave first-class firemen a $5 a month salary increase. A committee of firemen then called upon the Council to ask a $10 additional boost.

Another $5 increase was approved by the Council, bringing the scale for first-class firemen to $295 per month.

Vote Unanimous

However, 81 of the city's 92 first-class firemen voted to go back to the Council and ask for the third $5.

The 81 represents a unanimous vote, according to Melvin Pedigo, a member of the firemen's committee. The other 11 men, he said, could not be contacted for one reason or another.

"The Council," Ash said, "has never refused a hearing to any city employee. I believe, however, that the Council feels the firemen have been treated fairly."

Ash is acting mayor in the absence of Mayor Bennett Martin who is expected to return from Minnesota on Friday.

votes to Stevenson. Two delegates with half-vote each originally went for Harriman, then switched to make delegation unanimous.

KANSAS—Frank Thies, state Democratic chairman, said Stevenson may win on first ballot. Uncommitted delegates hold balance of power. State's 16 votes governed by unit rule, under which majority binds entire delegation. Scheduled poll Thursday morning.

COLORADO—Postponed poll of delegation until Thursday. Stevenson reportedly favored by majority of 20 votes.

CALIFORNIA—Stevenson pledged delegates sought support among other delegations for their man. George Kilian, former national party treasurer, predicted first-ballot victory for Stevenson.

MICHIGAN—Gov. G. Mennen Williams foresaw Stevenson triumph on first go-round. After discussing 44-vote delegation preferred Stevenson almost 3-1, said he was contacting other previously uncommitted favorite sons in Stevenson's behalf.

WISCONSIN—Harriman advocates contended their man had substantial backing among absentees at Tuesday night meeting which found Stevenson well in front for state's 28 votes.

OKLAHOMA—Sen. Robert S. Kerr prepared to blast Eisenhower administration domestic policies in night speech at convention. Under unit rule, all 28 votes marked for Harriman.

NEW YORK—Harriman, with virtually all of state's 98 votes, said rumor he intended to withdraw was baseless. Announced he would "stick with this thing to the end."

KENTUCKY—Chandler, setting first-ballot target of 100 votes, continued making rounds of delegations seeking support as potential deadlock breaker. State's 30 votes pledged to the governor.

UTAH—Remained officially undecided, with 12 votes reportedly split but Harriman rosters clamping an edge.

MINNESOTA—Sen. Hubert Humphrey failed to get clear-cut backing in bid for vice-presidential nomination as delegation recommended both he and Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee be considered for second place on ticket. Competition resulted from primary in which Kefauver won most of state's presidential nominating votes before withdrawing in favor of Stevenson.

OHIO—Gov. Frank Lausche, favorite-son candidate, said delegates pledged to him will be free to make own choice if and when he releases them. Of 58 votes, 32—possibly 54—are tabbed for Lausche on first ballot. Delegation leaders maintained about 50 of total would go for Stevenson as second choice. Lausche has said he would not back Harriman for nomination. Told group he would not cause stalemate, reiterated he is not interested in vice presidency. Harriman addressed delegation. Afterward, supporters said New York governor was second choice of delegates representing anywhere from 12 to 40 votes.

MISSOURI—Resolved to lay its 38 votes on the line for favorite-son Symington until he releases them or majority decides it is useless to continue. In light of possible dispute within delegation on platform's civil rights plank, agreed to poll members on all questions other than Symington candidacy.

Wheat, Rye Lead Grains Upward

CHICAGO (AP)—Grains range up further gains on the board of trade Wednesday as wheat and rye futures going to new seasonal highs. A couple of oats contracts also were at new peaks.

While corn and soybeans didn't score new highs, they were firm throughout the day. Corn, in fact, set the pace on the advance, the September contract firming from the start.

Wheat closed 3/4 to 1 cent higher, corn 1/2 cent higher, oats unchanged to 1/4 cent higher and rye 1/2 cent higher.

Stock Market Is Mixed At Close

NEW YORK (AP)—Late profit taking marked a rising stock market Wednesday, leaving it mixed at the close.

Steels, coppers, aircrafts and oils were pacemakers at mid-day when the market was at its best.

Oils fell as the session went on, then the steels washed out.

The close, leading coppers and aircrafts still held steady, but the rest of the market was pretty much of a wash.

The Associated Press average of 50 stocks closed 1/4 cent higher at 131.00, with the industrials up 3/4 cent, the rails down 1/4 cent and the utilities up 1/4 cent.

Trading was brisk at times, when the market was on the upswing and volume for the day totaled 2,000,000 shares compared with 1,800,000 the previous day.

Optimism over the steel situation and some good corporate news bolstered the sector confidence during much of the session. But toward the end, brokers said prices fell around an uncertainty as to whether the steel conference starts Thursday.

Prices of stocks in the American Stock Exchange, Volume totaled 770,000 shares compared with 710,000 Tuesday.

Dewey Visits Ike; He 'Assumes' Renomination Of 'Most Useful V.P. In History'

By JOHN A. HARRIS
WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower and Thomas E. Dewey talked politics at the White House Wednesday and Dewey said afterward he was "quite confident" Vice President Nixon will be renominated.

"I have assumed all along he would be nominated," the former New York governor added, "and I personally have felt he has been the most useful vice president in history."

Dewey disclaimed any interest in public office for himself, and he had no comment when asked whether the President had suggested he seek some office. There had been speculation that Dewey, now practicing law in New York, might be urged to try for a U. S. Senate seat from New York. The 1948 GOP presidential nominee turned aside questions as to whether he and Eisenhower touched on the Republican vice presidential controversy during their meeting. He did say they discussed the Republican convention which opens Monday in San Francisco. Dewey is a delegate. Meanwhile, Harold Stassen — who wants to bounce Nixon off the ticket this year — leaped to the defense of the vice president against the assaults of Democrats gathered at their national convention in Chicago.

"A number of (the convention) speakers have endeavored to place words in his mouth that he never spoke and then have launched unfair attacks on him," Stassen said of Nixon. "I speak out against these endeavors." Stassen is on a leave from his post as Eisenhower's disarmament aide to press his campaign to replace Nixon with Gov. Christian Herter of Massachusetts. He contends an Eisenhower-Herter ticket would get more votes.

Herter's Chance 'Better' At a news conference Wednesday, Stassen said Herter's chances are "steadily improving," but he declined to estimate the governor's strength in pledged delegates. Herter, who plans to nominate Nixon at San Francisco, has said he is not interested in the nomination for himself. Dewey, in praising Nixon, said the vice president has "lent more stature to the office, has grown more and has done more than anyone else" in the vice presidency. In response to questions, Dewey said he was not in line for any appointive post in the administration and was not interested in elective office. "I can't conceive of any circumstances that would lead me into any public office," he said. Dewey, who will address the Republican convention next week, described Democratic convention attacks against the administration as "self defeating."

—Lincoln Municipal Court— Judge Says Population Growth Main Reason Court Cases Up

Municipal Judge John Jacobson said Wednesday night he believes Lincoln's steady population growth has been the biggest reason for the ever-increasing number of cases before his court, which he said handles more cases than a n y other court in Nebraska.

The court processed 13,050 cases in 1954, compared with 4,773 in 1945, Judge Jacobson said at a Northeast Rotary Club meeting.

In addition to the population growth factor, he said, better city and state law enforcement methods also have boosted the number of cases.

There were nearly four times as many police cases and nearly eight times as many state cases in 1954 as in 1945, while the number of civil actions rose from 426 to 822.

The total number of cases in 1954 included 12,796 police cases and 4,432 state cases. During 1945 there were 3,774 police cases and 577 state actions handled by the court.

The large volume handled by the court prompted the 1955 State Legislature to authorize a second municipal judge to help with the tremendous work load, Judge Jacobson said. As a result, two judges instead of one will be elected this fall.
